

AskDocs Manual Tagging

label	text	pred	eval	is_ correct	SZ_ mentioned	is_ TP	is_ TN
1	Right side of leg feels like razor blades cutting and scabs 37 male 329 pounds and losing more. I was not working for 4 years and just got a job a few months ago since then my leg feels like it's being cut on the inside and I have little red bumps that are scabbing over. Even when I cough sometimes it hurts that side of the leg.	1	TP	1	0	1	0
0	My stool was pale one time but went back to normal brown color in next bowel movement. [removed]	1	FP	0	0	0	0
1	Is this normal back posture? Male, 22, Caucasian, Medical history: Diagonosed Schizophrenic, Medications: Olanzopine, 15mg, Height 5' 9/10", Weight: 7 stone (I know, im really underweight) Stood straight for photo, any concerns?	1	TP	1	1	1	0
1	Alergies to dishwashing? [wtf](37 male 333 lbs 6"3 I used to wash dishes in the past with no gloves and never had too much issue. But the water here is scalding so I bought latex and pvc gloves things were fine til I put on the pvc gloves one day and they started feeling like fiber glass. See attached post for pictures. Thanks for your time	0	FN	0	0	0	0
1	Can Anti-psychotics kill me? Someone posted in r/schizophrenia that Anti-psychotics can shorten life expectancy by 30 years, and that it can cause brain damage and kill you instantly at any time. Is this true?? ​ I am almost 29 years old, female, I am 4'11 and 145 lbs. I have had Schizophrenia for the past 8 years now, it runs in my family. I do not drug or smoke. I am on Abilify 10mg and Trazadone 50mg. I want to start taking Latuda, Haldol, and Hydroxyzine though when I see my new Psychiatrist next month. ​ I am really worried about this. I know going off my medication is a bad idea... but if they can hurt me, I	1	TP	1	1	1	0 have to stop.

	Does my finger look infected? My cat scratched me hard right in the crease part of my finger and now it's really sensitive and red: Here's about me: 28 years old 4'11 Overweight Schizophrenic Meds: Clozapine 800mg Propanolol 10 mg 2x day Aristada 662 So, is the finger just in the process of healing or does it look infected?
1	Thanks for any help!	1	TP	1	1	1	0
	Because I don't have Schizophrenia. I'm hearing real people from another dimension and I know it. There's nothing wrong with me and the meds are just blocking my ability to hear them as well as I used to. I'm not afraid of them anymore and I just want to save them. I might call my doctor tomorrow and insist she tells me how to get off them without any physical issues.	1	TP	1	1	1	0
0	Is it safe to take two brand of acetaminophen in the same day [removed]	1	FP	0	0	0	0
1	When is sleep apnea an emergency? [removed]	1	TP	1	0	1	0
1	Thank you so so much! I'll call them aaap!	1	TP	1	0	1	0
1	Rash all over my forehead, help! Near my scalp down to my right eyebrow, it was very dry with white flake on top of pink skin. [Here's an image, but the image is after I applied tea tree oil to it so you cant see the white dry bits that were there before.](1	TP	1	1	1	0

	Age - 24
	Sex - female
	Duration of complaint - just today
	Location (Geographic and on body) - forehead
	Any existing relevant medical issues (if any) - I had shingles in august of 2014, could it be that again?
	Current medications (if any) - Klonopin, Clozapine, Welbutrin
0	Would also like to know	0	TN	0	0	0	1
0	Some people respond this way to weed, its not a mental illness. I used to smoke weed and it was a totally normal high, now if I do it causes psychosis for me	0	TN	1	1	1	1
1	Do I have an eating disorder? Male, 22, Height 5' 10", Weight 44Kg / 97lbs / 7 stone (roughly) - Diagnosed with Schizophrenia, White / British. - I don't drink alcohol or smoke In regards to having an already low weight as it is, I have quite the attitude toward eating; I like to stay lithe and have a strong mentality in staying that way. I will forcibly keep myself from eating large portions of food despite wanting to eat - Sometimes, I will only have one meal a day at most with the occasional chocolate bar or so. I have thought about telling my GP but getting recommended to a dietitian, I would feel is pointless because I have to be the one to change how I eat and would be resilient to do so to stay thin.
1	Does this confirm an eating disorder and/or behaviours?	1	TP	1	1	1	0
0	I get this random lump in the throat sensation that turns painful to swallow for a couple of days then goes away completely for months. (Im on mobile so please excuse if bad formatting) Age- 26 Sex- F Height- 57 Weight- 135 Race- Caucasian
0	Duration of complaint- 1.5 years ago	0	TN	1	0	0	1

	Location on body- Throat Any medical issues- None Current medication- None (B vitamins, supplements) This started about a year and a half ago, (it was a very stressful time in my life) my throat started hurting one day like I had scratched it from swallowing something sharp. The next day it felt normal again. I chalked it up to maybe eating sharp chips or stress and/or anxiety because I was having other anxiety related symptoms such as headaches at that time. Ever since then, that has happened with my throat about 5 more times since. Yesterday it flared up again. It starts with a lump in the throat feeling, turns painful to swallow for a couple of days, then goes away completely and wont happen again for months. It doesnt feel like a sore throat from a cold. It almost feels like my throat muscles are super tight and constricted. I even looked at my tonsils this morning with a flashlight and they looked fine. No redness, no swelling, nothing out of the ordinary. Ive tried to think back on anything Ive ate or done to cause the pain. I do get occasional tonsil stones that I tried to dig out last weekend. I also felt a tonsil stone in the back of my mouth early this morning when I had just got up. I do eat chips occasionally and I was kind of worried about something yesterday. Im just curious as to what could be causing this.
1	I don't know what to believe. I googled, "Can Clozapine cause brain damage?" because I've been on Clozapine 800mg(I think the highest dose) for like 4 or 5 years until this past month, and it says this, "Neuroleptics - such as Clozapine, Olanzapine, Risperidone and Seroquel - are the "primary treatment" for psychosis, particularly schizophrenia. ... The evidence shows, she says, that antipsychotics not only do not work long-term they also cause brain damage - a fact which is being "fatally" overlooked." This is really scaring me. I don't want to get bad symptoms again. I've already had really bad symptoms recently, seeing things and hearing things... feeling like things are true when others say they aren't. I don't know what to believe anymore. I don't want to get brain damage from antipsychotics. I don't want to die from them. Not sure what to do here.	1	TP	1	1	1	0
1	I have vivid nightmares that keep me up if I don't take something to help me sleep. 25F, schizophrenic, previously diagnosed with PTSD. I can't take Ambien/most prescription sleep medications because of the fact that they can cause me to become delusional, so I take an OTC sleep aid. However, recently due to	1	TP	1	1	1	0

	the blizzard terrorizing the US, I have run out. It's been a problem for years, I'll fall asleep, have a nightmare that feels like it's happening to me (usually a PTSD flashback) and I'll wake up unable to go back to sleep because it still feels like it just happened. I feel like consistently taking OTC sleeping meds isn't healthy, but I can't sleep for more than 2-3 hours without them. That and my nightmares cause me to kick, roll, and headbutt in my sleep according to my fiancé, and I have rolled off of my bed and hurt myself by falling on several occasions during these nightmares. As bad as it sounds, I can't take melatonin because it isn't "strong enough" and the nightmares still happen. I usually take the "for sleep, not a cold" diphenhydramine, because while it leaves me incredibly groggy, it makes me either not dream or not feel like I'm dreaming. Is this normal for these conditions? Is my solution the healthiest option? And what can I do to sleep while I'm snowed in?
1	110 heart rate and chest pain I don't know if I have just had too much caffeine today(close to 400mg) or if something is wrong. My chest feels tight and I tested my heart rate with an app on my phone and it says 110. &#x200B; Should I be worried or will it just go away? I just took some ativan hoping it would calm things down. Here's some info: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> * Age -27 * Sex - F * Height - 4'11 * Weight - 150 lbs * Duration of complaint - 2 hours or so * Location (Geographic and on body) - chest * Any existing relevant medical issues (if any) - Schizophrenia * Current medications (if any) Meds: Clozapine	1	TP	1	1	1	0

Topomax
Buspar
Propanolol
Trazadone
Ativan
Lexapro
​
Should I just wait for it to resolve on its own or is it something serious?						